FALLING INTO FALL

There's something about October that I really love. The evenings start drawing in, the jumpers come back out and suddenly everything feels a little cosier. It's that time of year when candles are lit a little earlier, Sunday afternoons feel made for blankets and a little bit of spooky season starts creeping in.

We've definitely embraced it in this issue. From getting the house ready for Halloween with some fun decorating ideas, to treats and desserts you can make with the kids, there are plenty of ways to bring a little October magic home. And talking of things that come around at this time of year, wedding season might be winding down but for many couples, this is when the planning really begins. Engagements, venue hunting and endless Pinterest boards can only mean one thing... it's time for our Wedding Supplement. We've filled it with plenty of inspiration, from beauty and fashion to those finishing touches that can make a wedding feel completely your own. Our travel pages took us all the way to Cyprus and the beautiful Amathus Beach Hotel, where I spent some time with my family this summer. Travelling with a toddler always comes with its own set of challenges, so finding somewhere that feels luxurious but still genuinely works for families is a big win.

October gives us another important reason to pause and think about something a little more meaningful. With Breast Cancer Awareness Month taking place throughout October, we've put together the latest products that are donating a percentage of their sales to breast cancer charities. So while discovering some new products for your autumn routine, you can support a really important cause at the same time.

And then, of course, there's our cover star. This month we're so excited to feature Hilary Duff, whose career has taken her from one of the most recognisable faces of the early 2000s to the busy life she leads today. We take a look at her life, career and everything in between, bringing a little bit of nostalgia along with us.

So, whether October for you means pumpkin picking with the kids, cosy nights in, wedding planning, booking your next escape or simply enjoying that feeling of a new season beginning, I hope there's something inside these pages that makes you want to sit down, switch off and have a proper read.

HILARY DUFF

If you were anywhere near a television in the early 2000s, chances are you knew Hilary Duff. Before Instagram made celebrities part of our everyday lives, Duff was already everywhere. She was on our screens, in our CD players, on film posters and splashed across the pages of the magazines we bought with our pocket money. And then there was Lizzie McGuire, which, for a certain generation, was less of a television show and more of a way of life. Lizzie was awkward, funny, slightly dramatic and forever overthinking everything, which was probably why we all loved her quite so much.

Fast forward a couple of decades and Hilary is now 38, married to musician and producer Matthew Koma, a mum of four and, rather excitingly, back in her pop star era. After almost ten years away from releasing an album, she is back with Luck... or Something, while her Lucky Me Tour has taken her back onto the stage for the first time in almost 20 years. She has already played sold out shows, including two nights at Madison Square Garden, and has announced another 32 dates for 2027. As if that wasn't enough, she is also Reebok's newest ambassador, has her own activewear collection with the brand and has teamed up with Bath & Body Works for its Fruit Fusion collection.

"People's pasts are hard to get past, IMAGINE IF EVERYTHING YOU DID IN YOUR HIGH SCHOOL OR MIDDLE SCHOOL YEARS WAS ARCHIVED ONLINE FOR EVERYONE TO LOOK BACK ON."

It all started with Lizzie. Hilary landed the role at just 14, playing an ordinary teenager trying to navigate school, friendships, family and the sort of minor disasters that felt like the end of the world when you were 13. The show became one of Disney Channel's biggest hits and turned Duff into one of the most recognisable young stars of the early 2000s. Lizzie wasn't the impossibly cool girl at school. She was relatable, occasionally embarrassing and usually just trying to figure things out, while her animated alter ego said all the things she was too nervous to say herself.

The success quickly snowballed. Duff moved from television into films including Cheaper by the Dozen, A Cinderella Story, Raise Your Voice and Agent Cody Banks, while at exactly the same time building a very successful music career. Her debut album, Metamorphosis, arrived in 2003 and became a huge commercial success, followed by Hilary Duff, Most Wanted, Dignity and Breathe In. Breathe Out. Come Clean, So Yesterday and Wake Up became the sort of songs that could transport an entire generation straight back to their teenage bedrooms within about three seconds.

It was a lot. Duff was recording albums, touring, filming movies and growing up in front of millions of people, all while most teenagers were worrying about homework and what they were going to wear at the weekend. Looking back now, she can appreciate just how unusual it was. Speaking to Vogue, she reflected on what it would be like for any teenager to have every awkward moment preserved for the world to revisit. "People's pasts are hard to get past, imagine if everything you did in your high school or middle school years was archived online for everyone to look back on."

"I PUT IN A FULL DAY OF MOTHERHOOD AND THEN GO PLAY A SHOW, but the second I step offstage, I'm right back in it."

And perhaps that is why the current Y2K revival feels particularly strange for Duff. The outfits, hairstyles, interviews and old performances that people are now discovering or rediscovering are quite literally her teenage years. The butterfly clips, the glossy lips, the questionable early 2000s styling and, of course, the Lizzie McGuire wardrobe have all come back around. The difference is that the people who grew up watching her are now old enough to look back at that era with a rather different perspective. What once felt completely normal now feels deliciously nostalgic.

As Duff's career continued, though, her life became much less about being everywhere and much more about deciding where she actually wanted to be. She continued acting and making music, but gradually built a life away from the constant noise of the spotlight. She became a mum, welcoming her son Luca in 2012, followed by daughters Banks, Mae and Townes with Koma. Her priorities shifted, and music, which had once been such a huge part of her identity, naturally moved further down the list.

"I think that part of my wanting to make a record was coming out of having my fourth child," she told the Los Angeles Times. That thought eventually became Luck... or Something, her first album in almost a decade. The songs explore marriage, motherhood, ageing, relationships and the slightly less glamorous realities of long term love.

The Lucky Me Tour marks Duff's first full scale headline tour in almost two decades, bringing her back to the stage for a whole new generation of fans and, more importantly, the original ones who have been waiting for this moment for years. She has already sold out major shows, including two nights at Madison Square Garden, and the demand has been enough to extend the tour into 2027.

Of course, touring at 38 with four children is a slightly different proposition to touring as a teenager. These days, Duff isn't just packing stage outfits and microphones. There are children, schedules, snacks and all the other things that apparently follow you everywhere when you become a mum. "It's been so fun, but also so hard," she told Vogue. "I put in a full day of motherhood and then go play a show, but the second I step offstage, I'm right back in it."

The tour has also given Duff an excuse to have a serious amount of fun with fashion. Her stage wardrobe is playful, glamorous and full of sparkle, with feathers, stars and dreamy colours bringing a grown up version of her old pop aesthetic back to life. Working with stylist Neelo Noory, Duff has created a wardrobe that feels suitably theatrical without simply recreating the looks of her teenage years. "I wanted to represent a sad romantic feel with some edge, a slumber party, and a major fashion moment," she told ELLE.

Duff recently teamed up with Bath & Body Works for its Fruit Fusion collection, bringing colourful, fruity fragrance and body care into the mix. It is a particularly fitting partnership given how closely Duff is tied to the beauty aesthetic of the early 2000s. Glossy lips, fruity scents, shimmer and colourful accessories were all part of the era she helped define, and now those same trends have made a rather spectacular return.

The girl who started out as Lizzie has grown up, but she has taken the best bits with her. The music is back, the sequins are back and the nostalgia is having its moment, but this time around there is something much more interesting underneath it all. Hilary Duff knows who she is, she knows what she wants and she seems to be having an awful lot of fun finding out what comes next. Not a comeback, then. More like a very welcome encore.

Boost Your AUTUMN IMMUNITY

As the days get shorter and temperatures drop, it's time to fortify your body and mind with seasonal wellness habits that keep you healthy and energised all autumn long. Autumn is a season of change, cosy sweaters, pumpkin-spiced everything, and the first hints of chilly mornings. But with the shift in weather comes the need to protect our immune systems and maintain overall wellness. From nutrient-rich foods to mindful lifestyle tweaks, now is the perfect time to give your body the support it needs to stay strong through the colder months.

Power Foods for Immune Support

Fuel your body with foods that are packed with vitamins, minerals, and antioxidants

Citrus fruits: Oranges, grapefruits, and tangerines are rich in vitamin C to help fight off seasonal bugs.

Leafy greens: Spinach, kale, and Swiss chard are full of vitamins A, C, and E.

Root vegetables: Carrots, sweet potatoes, and beetroots provide beta-carotene and fibre.

Nuts & seeds: Almonds, sunflower seeds, and pumpkin seeds are rich in vitamin E and healthy fats.

Lifestyle Habits to Strengthen Immunity

Your diet is only part of the picture. Incorporate these habits to keep your defences high

Stay active: Aim for 20–30 minutes of moderate exercise daily, brisk walks, yoga, or light strength training.

Prioritise sleep: Your body repairs itself during sleep, so aim for 7–9 hours each night.

Manage stress: Meditation, journaling, and mindful breathing can help prevent stress-related immune suppression.

Hydrate consistently: Herbal teas, water, and broths help maintain fluid balance and support overall health.

Golden Glow Immunity SMOOTHIE

Serves 2

Ingredients

1 medium carrot, peeled and chopped
1 orange, peeled
½ cup pineapple chunks
½ tsp turmeric
½ tsp fresh grated ginger
1 cup almond milk (or any milk of choice)
1 tsp honey (optional)

Method

Place all ingredients in a blender. Blend until smooth and creamy. Pour into glasses and enjoy immediately.

Bonus Tips

Swap heavy comfort foods for lighter, nutrient-dense meals.

Take short outdoor walks to soak up natural sunlight and vitamin D.

Include seasonal herbs like rosemary, sage, and thyme in your cooking, they're full of antioxidants.

Tip

Turmeric and ginger not only boost immunity but also have anti-inflammatory properties, perfect for autumn wellness.

AFTER

As the nights draw in and Halloween gets closer, there's no better time to swap your usual playlist for something a little darker. From chilling real-life crimes and unexplained paranormal encounters to sinister investigations and stories that will have you questioning what you thought you knew, these are the podcasts made for listening after dark. Whether you're looking for something genuinely creepy, a mystery you can get completely lost in or a case that will have you googling every detail afterwards, turn off the lights, settle in and press play… if you dare.

RedHanded

Hannah Maguire and Suruthi Bala delve into some of the world's most fascinating and disturbing true crime cases, from notorious murders and unexplained disappearances to bizarre conspiracies and the darker side of human behaviour. With plenty of research, discussion and the pair's distinctive personalities, RedHanded has become one of the UK's best known true crime podcasts and is currently at the top of Apple's UK True Crime chart.

Casefile True Crime

For those who prefer their true crime a little more atmospheric, Casefile takes a deep dive into real cases from around the world, examining the evidence, investigations and unanswered questions surrounding them. Told in a deliberately stripped back style, its detailed storytelling makes even the most familiar cases feel unsettling, and it remains one of the UK's top ranked true crime podcasts.

Uncanny

Are ghosts real, or is there another explanation? Danny Robins investigates real life stories of paranormal encounters, speaking to people who claim to have experienced everything from hauntings and poltergeists to UFO sightings. Each story is examined from both a believer's and a sceptic's perspective, leaving you to decide which side you're on. With a 4.7 rating from more than 3,000 Apple Podcasts listeners, it's a perfect October listen.

DARK

Intrigue: To Catch a King

This BBC investigative series sounds like something from a thriller. Journalists Sue Mitchell and Rob Lawrie set out to track down the mysterious leader of a Kurdish people smuggling network, uncovering a trail of aliases, secret operations and unexpected twists along the way. It's true crime with an international, investigative edge, making it ideal for anyone who likes their listening to feel like a real life spy story.

Crime Junkie

Hosted by Ashley Flowers and Brit Prawat, Crime Junkie has become one of the world's most recognisable true crime podcasts, with each episode taking listeners inside a different case, from murders and disappearances to investigations where the answers remain elusive. It's an easy one to dip into if you're new to true crime, while its huge back catalogue means there's plenty to binge once you've been pulled in. It's currently sitting in the UK's top 10 True Crime chart.

The Witch Farm

For something genuinely atmospheric, this BBC series follows a young family who move into an isolated farmhouse in rural Wales, only to experience a terrifying series of unexplained events. Written and presented by Danny Robins, creator of Uncanny, the eight part series combines a dramatised supernatural thriller with an investigation into the real life story behind what has been called one of Britain's most haunted houses.

MILLIE'S
Graze & Bakes

THE ART OF THE GRAZE: INSIDE MILLIE'S GRAZE & BAKES

From heartfelt beginnings and late-night kitchen experiments to grand wedding celebrations, founder Danielle shares the heart, soul, and meticulous craft behind her luxury catering brand.

CLOSE UP: Welcome, Danielle! We are so excited to sit down with you today. To kick things off, can you tell us a bit about who you are and the philosophy behind Millie's Graze & Bakes?

MILLIE: Thank you! I'm Danielle, founder and stylist behind Millie's Graze & Bakes. We specialise in luxury grazing experiences, bespoke and custom catering for everything from intimate private parties and brand events to opulent weddings. We blend rich culinary flavours with fine art (we often hear clients say, "it's like a work of art!") to create edible centrepieces that bring people together and elevate any event into something unforgettable.

CLOSE UP: Your story is deeply personal. How did this journey originally begin?

MILLIE: It started in 2016, after losing my beloved horse, Millie (hence where the name comes from). I found comfort in baking for family and friends and naming the venture (known back then as Millie's Cupcakes) in her memory.

Then in 2020. At the beginning of COVID, I was inspired by Olive & Fig in Toronto sharing their stunning graze boxes. At this time, 'Grazes' weren't really a thing in the UK; there were probably 2/3 known businesses doing it. So, I thought I'd try my hand at it locally. I honestly thought the graze phase would disappear once COVID was gone and life returned to some kind of normality... how wrong I was! It completely exploded.

CLOSE UP: Behind these grand setups is a brilliant operation. Tell us about the team working alongside you.

We are an all-female, family-led team, and we run like a fine-tuned machine. From my mother to my sisters-in-law, to friends, everyone's involved. When setting up a massive 10-foot wedding graze, there's no room for guesswork. The girls just know what to do and how I like things to look and feel. That family bond brings an extra level of trust to every event.

CLOSE UP: Weddings are a major focus now. What is the ultimate reward when curating a couple's big day?

The private reveal. Before the guests enter the reception space, we bring the couple in for a first look at their graze installation. Seeing their tears, hugs, and pure delight when they realise their vision has been brought to life – that is the exact moment that makes every early hour and intricate detail worth it.

FOR LIFE'S MAGICAL MOMENTS

The Art of Anticipation: How Caboodleit Rewrote the Countdown Playbook

The most magical part of a major milestone isn't always the day itself; it's the mounting excitement beforehand.

Recognising this, our UK-based brand Caboodleit are slowly disrupting the event industry by launching a genuine first-to-market innovation: dual-purpose Birthday Advent Calendars (caboodle-it.co.uk) These stunning 2ft and 4ft countdowns allowed families to extend birthday magic over multiple days, filling pockets with curated gifts before flipping them over to transform into glowing, illuminated party centrepieces for the big day.

Following this phenomenal success, we have naturally evolved our signature style to conquer the ultimate countdown season, launching a spectacular range of reusable, fill-your-own Christmas Advent Calendars. Applying the same premium, design principles, we have created a reusable Christmas collection that replaces flimsy, single-use alternatives with luxury festive statements.

From our beautifully detailed, free-standing Gingerbread House Advent to our show-stopping 1.8-meter giant countdowns, these premium centrepieces feature 12-24 customisable doors and drawers ready to be personalised with your family name. However, the true magic of a Caboodleit Christmas lies in a playful morning tradition: the search for Gary.

Gary is our brand's elusive, cheeky character whose job is to hide each night for the children to find the following morning, Gary is the key to open that day's advent door. Every December morning, the countdown turns into an interactive family hunt as children and parents figure out exactly where Gary is hiding next, elevating a physical calendar into a lasting tradition of shared storytelling.

True to our brand's values, every piece is proudly manufactured in the UK using 99% recycled materials. By blending high-end event aesthetics with sustainable, eco-friendly luxury, Caboodleit ensures your grandest celebrations are built to be treasured year after year. Explore the full, magical collections today at Caboodleit.

Check LIST

Thinking about starting to plan your big day?
Don't do so without Close Up's handy wedding checklist
– giving you a month-by-month countdown!

12 Months Before

- ◯ Set the Budget: Small or big, this is a conversation that needs to happen early on.
- ◯ Book Venue: Venues book up fast—in some cases, up to a year in advance.
- ◯ Draft Guest List: Family, friends – those that mean the world to you!
- ◯ Engagement Party: A nice touch if you're planning a longer engagement.

10 Months Before

- ◯ Pick an Officiant: Whether it's a classic church wedding or modern registry, days available go quickly!
- ◯ Select Bridal Party: A tough call! Sophisticated, older friends? Or cute, little flower girls?
- ◯ Choose Vendors: A hotel for the wedding party, a photographer, a caterer, DJ or band, and florist.

8 Months Before

- ◯ Order Your Dress: Believe it or not, a wedding dress can take up to 7 or 8 months to receive after ordering—especially if you are doing something customized!
- ◯ Cake Tastings + Order Cake: Enjoy yourself here! Yum, yum!
- ◯ Begin Hair & Makeup Trails: Once you've ordered your dress, it's a good idea to begin thinking about your beauty look – hair and makeup!

6 Months Before

- ◯ Send Save the Dates: Give your guests at least a few months notice.
- ◯ Book Honeymoon: Sunny, beach getaways? Or wild, mountain escapes? The list of options is endless!
- ◯ Order Bridesmaids' Dresses: These can take up to 5 months to receive after ordering, allow time for alterations.
- ◯ Purchase Wedding Rings: Earlier is better if these are personalised. Just don't lose them!

4 Months Before

- ◯ Select Groomsmen Attire: Trust the groom with his attire! (We know...only if it matches!)

2 Months Before

- ◯ Mail Invitations: Wedding invitations are typically sent out 6 to 8 weeks prior to the wedding.
- ◯ Write or Decide on Vows/Ceremony: Choose something personal to you and your future husband.
- ◯ Purchase Day Of Accessories: Your shoes, jewellery, hairpieces, veil, etc. Don't forget "Something old, something new, something borrowed, and something blue!"
- ◯ Transportation: Horse drawn carriage? Ferrari? Make it personal to you and your day.

6 Weeks Before

- ◯ Apply for Marriage License: Rather important, www.adviceguide.org.uk, provides useful information on the legalities.

1 Month Before

- ◯ Hen & Stag Parties: Find a date that works for you. We suggest not having it the day before the wedding though!

2 Weeks Before

- ◯ Final Dress Fitting: Test out your accessories with your dress. Also, it's wise to start breaking in your wedding shoes at this point.
- ◯ Give Shot List to Photographer: Put together a list of important shots you would like taken for your photographer.
- ◯ Review Music with DJ/Band: Touch base with your band or DJ to finalize the playlist and confirm special request songs.

1 Week Before

- ◯ Final Headcount: Confirm the numbers with the hotel and planner, if you have one.
- ◯ Finalize Seating Chart: Now you know who's coming, you can decide who can and can't sit near each other!

48 Hours Before

- ◯ Finalise the Look: Man's, pedi's, and tans.

Day Of

- ◯ Get married & live happily ever after! No wedding is perfect and things might go astray. Just remember to enjoy the moment (it goes by fast) and have fun!

Cook's tip

If you buy a larger piece of ginger, prepare it all, then freeze in handy ice cube blocks before moving to a reusable container (it freezes for up to 3 months).

Chicken & ginger noodle

BROTH

Most of us have our own version of chicken noodle soup. Alison Oakervee's recipe is perfect for when you're in need of a warming ginger boost and is ready to serve in just 20 minutes.

Serves 4
Prep 5 mins
Cook 15 mins

Ingredients

1.8 L chicken stock (from 4 stock cubes) • 1 onion, halved, then thinly sliced • 50g ginger (about 8cm), peeled and thinly sliced • 380g pack slower reared 2 British chicken breast fillets • 200g pack button mushrooms, sliced • ½ x 250g pack fine egg noodles • 250g pack green pak choi, roughly chopped • 1 tbsp light soy sauce

Method

Bring the stock to the boil in a large pan with the onion and ginger, and simmer for 5 minutes until the onion starts to soften. Meanwhile, thinly slice the chicken breasts across the grain.

Add the chicken and mushrooms to the stock. Season with a little finely ground black pepper, return to the boil, then simmer, covered, for 10 minutes more, or until the chicken is thoroughly cooked with no pink meat and juices that run clear.

Cook the egg noodles according to pack instructions. Stir the pak choi and drained noodles into the chicken broth, then simmer for 2-3 minutes more until the pak choi is wilted and the noodles piping hot.

Add the soy, season to taste, then ladle into deep bowls and serve the broth with spoons and chopsticks.

Thai basil & aubergine

CURRY

A speedy, fragrant Thai-style curry. Add cooked prawns or tofu for extra protein.

Serves 2
Prep 10 mins
Cook 30 mins

Ingredients

2 aubergines • 2½ tbsp sunflower oil • 1 enchalion shallot, finely sliced • 1 clove/s garlic, finely sliced • 3 tbsp Cooks' Ingredients Thai Red Curry Paste • 400ml reduced-fat coconut milk • 4 fresh makrut lime leaves (available in selected stores), scrunched • 1 tbsp nam pla fish sauce • 1 tsp caster sugar • ½ lime, juice • 20g pack Cooks' Ingredients Thai Basil, leaves picked

Method

Preheat the oven to 220°C, gas mark 7. Line a large baking tray with foil. Cut the aubergines lengthways into slim wedges. Toss with 2 tbsp oil and spread over the lined baking tray. Season and roast for 30 minutes, turning halfway, until golden.

Meanwhile, heat the remaining ½ tbsp oil in a large saucepan over a medium-high heat. Fry the shallot and garlic for 2-3 minutes, then add the curry paste and stir over the heat for 1-2 minutes (take care as it will spit a bit). Stir in the coconut milk, lime leaves, fish sauce, sugar and lime juice. Simmer gently for 5-10 minutes, stirring in three-quarters of the Thai basil for the last minute.

Divide the aubergines between bowls with steamed rice noodles or jasmine rice, if liked, then spoon over the sauce, discarding the lime leaves. Scatter with the remaining Thai basil and some roasted cashews or peanuts, if liked.

Cook's tip

The curry sauce can be made up to 48 hours in advance. Cover and chill, then reheat to serve. Leave the lime leaves in the sauce to infuse if you do this.

Cardamom & pistachio double

RICE PUDDING

Rice milk is naturally a little sweet. Just the thing for a fragrant, dairy-free rice pudding.

Serves 4
Prep 10 mins
Cook 40 mins

Ingredients

100g short grain pudding rice • 400ml Tilda Classic Organic Rice Milk • 4 cardamom pods, seeds crushed • 12 drop/s (1/8 tsp) rose water (optional) • 25g golden caster sugar • ½ tbsp cornflour • 30g pistachios, toasted and chopped

Method

Put the rice into a saucepan with the milk alternative, cardamom seeds, rose water (if using), sugar and cornflour, then stir to combine.

Bring to the boil, then reduce the heat to low. Cover and gently simmer for 35-40 minutes, stirring regularly, until the rice is tender and most of the liquid is absorbed.

Remove from the heat, cover and leave to stand for 5 minutes, or loosely cover, leave to cool completely, then chill, if you want to serve the rice pudding cold.

Add a splash more milk alternative if needed to loosen it to your liking, then top with the pistachios and serve.

Halloween Black Forest

CUPCAKES

This tiny take on the Black Forest gâteau makes for the perfect treat for your Halloween party. They are filled with a homemade cherry compote and topped with sweetened whipped cream.

Serves 12
Prepare 25 mins
Cook 25 mins

Ingredients

180g unsalted butter, softened •
180g caster sugar • 3 eggs, beaten •
130g self-raising flour • 50g cocoa powder •
1 tsp vanilla bean paste

For filling and topping
2 x 350g packs frozen black cherries •
1 lemon, juice • 1 pinch/es caster sugar •
1 star anise • 2 tbsp cherry brandy •
250ml double cream • 2 tsp icing sugar •
10g dark chocolate, shaved or grated

Method

Preheat the oven to 180°C, gas mark 4. Line a 12-hole muffin tin with paper cases. In a large bowl, beat the butter with the sugar until pale and fluffy. Beat in the eggs, a little at a time. Sift in the flour and cocoa powder, then fold in with the vanilla. Spoon into the cases and bake for 20-25 minutes, until a skewer inserted into the middle comes out clean. Cool in the tin for 5 minutes, then transfer to a wire rack to cool completely.

Meanwhile, make the filling. Put 450g cherries in a pan over a medium heat. Add the lemon juice, caster sugar, star anise and 2 tbsp water. Bubble gently for 15 minutes, until starting to turn jammy, then stir in the cherry brandy and set aside to cool.

Once the cakes have cooled, use a teaspoon to scoop out a hole in the middle of each, then fill with the cherry compote. Whip the cream with the icing sugar until peaks form, then pipe or spoon on top of the cupcakes. Sprinkle with the chocolate shavings and serve.

Halloween

ROCKY ROAD

This fun and delicious Halloween recipe is great for making and enjoying together as a family. Plus, it's perfect for parties and delighting trick-or-treaters.

Serves 16
Prep 20 mins
Cook 5 mins

Ingredients

½ tbsp sunflower oil, plus extra for greasing • 100g unsalted butter, cubed • 1 tbsp golden syrup • 300g milk chocolate, broken into pieces • 150g dark chocolate, broken into pieces • 30g popcorn maize • 80g jelly sweets, such as Teeth & Lips and Fizzy Watermelon Slices, plus extra, if giving as gifts • 50g Essential Mini Pink & White Marshmallows • 16 large chocolate buttons • 1 tbsp milk chocolate chips • Edible eyes, to decorate • White writing icing, to decorate • Strawberry laces, to decorate

Method

Lightly oil a 23cm square, loose-bottomed, non-stick cake tin and line with a strip of baking parchment. In a large saucepan and over a low heat, gently melt the butter, syrup and chocolate, stirring until well combined.

Meanwhile, heat ½ tbsp oil in a separate, lidded saucepan and add the popcorn kernels. Put the lid on and cook according to packet instructions until all the corn has popped.

Take the chocolate pan off the heat and leave to cool for 10 minutes. Stir in the popcorn, sweets and marshmallows. Spoon the mix into the tin, and arrange the chocolate buttons on top adding two small chocolate chips to each button, to make ears. Cool, then cover and chill in the fridge for 3 hours until set (longer is fine).

Take the rocky road out of the fridge, remove from the tin and place on a board. Using the writing icing, pipe two dots to secure the eyes and two small fangs. Position the edible eyes and press 1cm lengths of strawberry lace over the fangs for a mouth. Using a large knife, cut into squares.

WINTER GREENS

Winter Greens brings together the darker green tones coming through across interiors and fashion right now. Think bottle green, pine and deep evergreen rather than softer olive shades, with these richer colours giving the season a moodier, more grounded feel. From painted furniture and glossy finishes to upholstery and accessories, green is proving to be one of winter's most versatile colours, offering an alternative to the usual neutrals while still feeling classic.

THE AMATHUS HOTEL

Set along the beautiful Mediterranean coastline, The Amathus is a five-star hotel and proud member of The Leading Hotels of the World, and from the moment you arrive, it is clear that this is somewhere that takes luxury seriously. Beautiful surroundings, impeccable service, exceptional food and thoughtful little touches come together to create a hotel that feels genuinely special.

Travelling with a 15-month-old can sometimes make the idea of a luxury getaway feel slightly ambitious. There are nappies, snacks, bottles, toys and a buggy to think about, not to mention the small matter of keeping a very energetic toddler entertained. But The Amathus proved that having a little one in tow doesn't mean compromising on the finer things. In fact, one of the things we loved most about our stay was how effortlessly the hotel combines five-star luxury with everything you need for a family holiday.

We stayed in one of the hotel's Superior Rooms, which was the perfect choice for our little family. Spacious, beautifully designed and finished to an incredibly high standard, the suite felt luxurious without ever feeling too formal or uncomfortable.

The hotel had thoughtfully arranged a cot for our daughter before we arrived, which was such a lovely touch and immediately made us feel that travelling with a little one was something they were completely accustomed to. There was plenty of space for all the things that inevitably come with a toddler, while still leaving us with a beautiful, calm room that felt like a proper escape.

The interiors have that effortless five-star feel: elegant, understated and incredibly comfortable. It was the kind of room you actually looked forward to returning to after a day in the sunshine.

For families, having that extra space is invaluable. There is something very different about staying somewhere where you can put your little one down for a nap and still have room to sit, relax and enjoy the surroundings rather than feeling as though you're all confined to one room. And while having a toddler means your days are rarely entirely your own, our Superior Room gave us the perfect little sanctuary to slow down and enjoy the quieter moments.

One of the things that really stood out during our stay was just how family-friendly the hotel is. We visited the kids' club, where the staff were incredibly friendly and welcoming. Our daughter had plenty to keep her entertained, and it was lovely to see how naturally the team interacted with the children. There was a relaxed, happy atmosphere that made it easy for little ones to settle in and enjoy themselves.

Then there was the children's swimming pool, which was another definite highlight. It is brilliantly equipped for younger guests, with slides and plenty of fun features to keep them entertained. Our daughter loved being in the water, and we loved that the pool area felt both fun and well supervised.

It is these details that make such a difference when travelling with a toddler. You want somewhere where your child can have fun, but where you can also relax knowing that the hotel understands what families need.

And despite all of the family-friendly facilities, The Amathus never loses its sense of luxury. There are beautiful spaces throughout the hotel where you can enjoy a quieter moment, while the stunning coastline and Mediterranean setting provide the perfect backdrop.

For those looking to spend their days by the water, The Amathus has plenty to offer. The hotel's incredible seawater pool is one of the standout features of the property. Beautifully positioned by the sea, it offers that wonderful holiday feeling where you can spend the entire day in and around the water, moving between the pool and the Mediterranean beyond.

For families, the separate children's pool means younger guests have their own space to splash, play and enjoy the water, while adults can make the most of the hotel's other pool areas.

If there is one thing that can make or break a hotel stay, it's breakfast, and The Amathus certainly knows how to do breakfast. The buffet was incredible, with an enormous choice of food catering to just about every taste. Fresh fruit, pastries, breads, cereals, cooked breakfast options and plenty of hot and cold choices meant there was something different to enjoy every morning.

Travelling with a toddler also made the buffet particularly useful. There was plenty of choice for our daughter, and being able to pick and choose what she fancied made breakfast much easier.

For us, breakfast quickly became one of those lovely holiday rituals. A leisurely start to the day, plenty of coffee, a table full of food and no need to think about what you're going to make for breakfast yourself. Add in the beautiful surroundings and it was the perfect way to start each morning.

When it came to dinner, we headed to The Grill Room, one of the hotel's three restaurants, and it was every bit as delicious as we'd hoped.

The atmosphere was stylish but relaxed, making it a great option for families without feeling like you've compromised on the dining experience. The menu offered plenty of tempting choices, but we settled on a burger and an Asian beef salad.

The burger was delicious, but the Asian beef salad was the real standout. Fresh, full of flavour and genuinely one of those dishes you don't stop thinking about after you've finished it. It was, quite simply, unreal.

The service was another highlight. The staff were warm, friendly and attentive throughout the meal, and there was never any sense that having a toddler at the table was an inconvenience. That relaxed attitude makes such a difference when you're dining out with a little one.

For something a little more special, the hotel is also home to Limanaki, its award-winning gourmet seafood restaurant set right beside the sea. With its beautiful location and focus on fresh seafood, it offers a more sophisticated dining experience and would be perfect for a romantic evening or special occasion.

With three restaurants to choose from, there is plenty of variety without needing to leave the hotel for dinner.

One of my favourite parts of the stay was actually something that had nothing to do with the beach or the pool. I managed to book an appointment at the hotel's salon to have my hair done, and it was exactly the kind of little bit of me-time that can be so difficult to find when you're travelling with a toddler.

Even better, I was able to get a same-day appointment, which I was absolutely delighted about. I could leave the family for a little while, sit back, have my hair done and enjoy some proper time to myself.

It might sound like a small part of a holiday, but for parents, those moments are anything but small. Having everything you need within the hotel means you don't have to organise childcare, travel somewhere else or spend hours planning it. You can simply book an appointment, enjoy a little pampering and return feeling refreshed.

While The Amathus is an obvious choice for a family getaway, it is also the kind of hotel that works beautifully for couples, celebrations and special occasions.

The hotel hosts weddings and events, and with its beautiful gardens, elegant spaces and incredible Mediterranean backdrop, it is easy to understand the appeal. Whether it's a wedding, anniversary, birthday or another milestone, the combination of five-star service, beautiful surroundings and exceptional food makes for a memorable setting.

And then, of course, there is Limassol itself. The location gives guests the opportunity to enjoy the best of Cyprus, from the coastline and warm Mediterranean waters to the restaurants, culture and history of the city, before returning to the calm and comfort of the hotel.

What makes The Amathus particularly memorable is that it manages to deliver luxury without making family life feel like an afterthought.

Travelling with a 15-month-old can mean your holiday looks a little different. Early mornings, nap times, snacks everywhere and a lot more time in the children's pool than you perhaps imagined. But The Amathus makes all of that feel easy.

From the beautifully appointed Junior Suite, to the brilliant kids' club, children's pool, playground area and attentive staff, we felt completely comfortable as a family. There was always something for our daughter to enjoy, while there were still plenty of opportunities for us to relax, eat exceptionally well and enjoy a little time for ourselves.

The food was fantastic, the breakfast buffet was everything you'd want from a five-star stay, The Grill Room was a definite highlight and having three restaurants on site meant there was always somewhere tempting to eat. Add in the seawater pool, beautiful setting, salon and impeccable service and you have a hotel that manages to tick a rather impressive number of boxes.

The Amathus is luxurious without being stuffy, family-friendly without feeling like a children's resort and beautifully designed without losing that warm Cypriot hospitality.

For a family holiday where everyone gets to enjoy a little bit of luxury, The Amathus is a pretty hard act to follow.

With raw honesty, Tyson confronts the choices, pressures, and personal cost behind his legacy.

FRIGHT NIGHT

Swap your usual bedtime read for something darker with these gripping tales of ghosts, murder, mystery and mayhem.

Bury Our Bones in the Midnight Soil

By V. E. Schwab

Inside the pages:

Spanning nearly five centuries, this dark gothic story follows three women whose lives become connected by a mysterious, supernatural legacy. In 1532, María is offered a chance to escape the life she has been forced into. In 1827 London, Charlotte is sent away after a forbidden encounter, where she meets a beautiful widow who offers her a new kind of freedom. Then, in 2019 Boston, Alice's impulsive one night stand leaves her searching for answers about her past, leading her on a dangerous journey of discovery and revenge.

Between Two Fires

By Christopher Buehlman

Inside the pages:

Set in France during the Black Death in 1348, this medieval horror follows Thomas, a disgraced knight who discovers a young orphan alone in a plague ravaged village. She claims the plague is only the beginning, and that fallen angels are waging a war against Heaven, with humanity caught in the middle. Thomas agrees to escort her across the devastated country to Avignon, where she believes she must confront the evil destroying the world. Along the way, they encounter demons, the risen dead and a terrifying battle between good and evil.

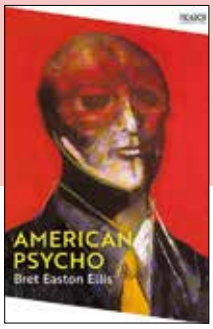

A Schooling in Murder

By Andrew Taylor

Inside the pages:

England, May 1945. At Monkshill Park School for Girls, teacher Annabel Warnock disappears just as World War II draws to a close. While everyone assumes she has simply left, the truth is far darker. After her body is discovered, Annabel remains trapped at the school as a ghost, watching the students, teachers and servants as tensions and rivalries begin to unravel. When replacement tutor Alec Shaw arrives and starts investigating her death, he discovers that one of those within the school's walls is her killer.

American Psycho

By Bret Easton Ellis

Inside the pages:

American Psycho follows Patrick Bateman, a wealthy and successful Wall Street banker who appears to have everything, from designer clothes to exclusive restaurants and a glamorous social life. But beneath his polished exterior lies a deeply disturbed man with a terrifying secret. As Bateman moves between his privileged daytime existence and increasingly violent nights, his obsession with torture and murder exposes the darker side of a world consumed by money, status and excess. Disturbing, graphic and unsettling, it remains one of modern horror's most infamous novels.

It

By Stephen King

Inside the pages:

In the small town of Derry, Maine, a group of children are brought together by a terrifying evil that takes the form of their deepest fears, most often appearing as Pennywise the Dancing Clown. After defeating the creature once, the friends promise to return if it ever comes back. Twenty seven years later, children begin disappearing again, and the now grown up friends reunite to keep their promise. As they confront the horrors of their childhood once more, they must finally destroy the terrifying force that has haunted Derry for generations.

Five Months of Change: Enfield Conservatives are getting on with the job

Since taking control of Enfield Council in May 2026, the Conservative administration has wasted no time in beginning the work residents elected us to do.

In just five months, we have brought about radical change. But we have always been honest about the scale of the challenge. It takes longer than five months to undo the damage we believe was caused by 16 years of Labour running Enfield. We cannot fix everything overnight, but the direction of our borough has fundamentally changed.

We have passed 30 minutes of free parking on Enfield's high streets and in council-owned car parks, supporting our town centres and making it easier for residents to shop locally. We are working towards introducing this in November or December.

We are cracking down on dodgy businesses that do not play by the rules. This work will continue, with further plans to tackle problems affecting Hertford Road, Southgate and Palmers Green.

Fly-tipping is another priority. We are hiring 28 permanent fly-tipping staff, replacing temporary agency workers who cost approximately £960,000 between February and June 2026. We believe that temporary arrangement was an expensive election giveaway by the previous Labour administration. Our approach is about building a permanent service that delivers value for taxpayers.

We have also invested more than £800,000 in our parks, because residents deserve clean, safe and attractive green spaces that families can enjoy.

Meanwhile, we are confronting the enormous financial legacy we inherited. Labour left Enfield with a debt mountain of £1.295 billion, costing approximately £26 million every year in interest repayments. We have begun the difficult task of paying that debt down and restoring financial discipline. Every pound spent servicing debt is money that cannot be invested in the frontline services residents expect.

We have withdrawn Enfield from the New Town process and begun reviewing LTNs, ensuring residents have a proper say in decisions affecting their neighbourhoods.

We have also started developing our plans to bring back weekly black and blue bin collections, reversing a policy that has caused frustration for many households.

> "WE PROMISED AN ENFIELD COUNCIL THAT LISTENS TO RESIDENTS, RESPECTS TAXPAYERS' MONEY AND GETS THE BASICS RIGHT. Five months in, we are delivering radical change."

And we will soon scrap the appointment system at Barrowell Green Recycling Centre, making it easier for residents to use this vital local service.

These are substantial changes in a remarkably short period of time, but they are only the beginning.

After 16 years of Labour control, nobody should expect every problem to disappear within five months. Repairing the council's finances, reforming services and delivering lasting improvements takes time.

But residents can already see the difference.

We promised an Enfield Council that listens to residents, respects taxpayers' money and gets the basics right. Five months in, we are delivering radical change. There is much more to do, but after 16 years, Enfield finally has a council determined to do things differently.
